The Grid-Reuse Screen

285 retired thermal sites, 136.9 GW, on extra-high-voltage interconnection with no announced reuse

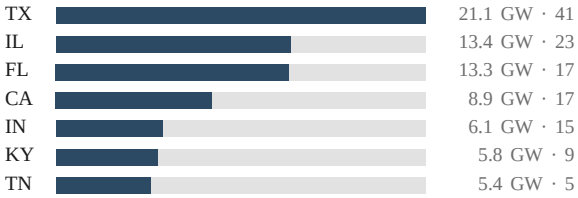

Companion to “The Reaggregation of Dispersed Knowledge”, October 2026 · built from two public federal files

The definition, in full, because the number means nothing without it. Take every plant carrying 50 MW or more of thermal capacity — coal, gas steam, combined cycle, combustion turbine, petroleum liquids, petroleum coke, integrated gasification, other gases and nuclear — recorded as retired in the 2025 EIA-860 vintage. Exclude any plant code carrying a proposed unit, because there the transaction has already been announced. Keep those in counties holding an in-service substation at 345 kV or above.

What this is: a screening population for diligence. What it is not: an inventory of confirmed interconnection rights. The join is by county rather than by verified electrical connection, so the voltage and line count below describe the highest-rated in-service substation in the plant's county, not a circuit proven to reach the plant. Confirming any single site requires the interconnection agreement or the operator's one-line diagram. The screen establishes where to look and in what order.
